Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org

Yes, Open Carry of a handgun in the State of California is legal.

There are many restrictions, but generally as long as your handgun is not concealed, and not loaded, and you are not in a prohibited area ("school zone", post office, government building), it is legal.

Firearms carried openly in belt holsters are not concealed per California law.

Possession of both a firearm and loaded magazines or loaded speed-loaders, by the same person does not equate to possession of a loaded firearm, except under specific (codified) circumstances.

Read the California Open Carry Flyer for complete details, relevant codes, and case law.

www.CaliforniaOpenCarry.org